Scope

This report is part of a series of 5 highly-visual reports covering the 40 markets surveyed in the annual Voice of the Consumer: Lifestyles survey.

Draws together insights from across the Lifestyles survey and provides takeaways on key trends.

Reviews shifting consumer traits and values that influence purchasing and consumption behaviours. (Visual only report)

Explores consumers beyond their demographic profile and provides a different perspective on shopping habits and path to purchase.

Consumer Profiles - offer a concise and clear overview of the consumer landscape, encompassing all aspects of population, households, income and expenditure, and lifestyles

Connects survey insights with Euromonitor's megatrends, including case studies highlighting how companies are responding to changing attitudes and expectations.

Note: In the Lifestyles survey, respondents provide their age within 5-year increments (15-19, 20-24, 25-29, etc). Given these parameters, generations cited in this report series are defined as follows: Generation Z: aged 15 to 29; Millennials: aged 30 to 44; Generation X: aged 45 to 59; Baby Boomers: aged 60+

Consumer Types can be a powerful tool to help companies better understand and appeal to their target markets. By going beyond typical demographic-based segmentation, such as age or gender, and grouping consumers based on shared traits and preferences, companies can better develop products and marketing campaigns that resonate with key customers.

Why segment consumers by type?

Our Voice of the Consumer: Lifestyles Survey fielded questions in January and February 2025 In the 2025 iteration, the survey continued to focus on changing consumer behaviours and included new questions focusing on changing home and work life, sustainability as well as health and safety concerns. Euromonitor International's Voice of the Consumer: Lifestyles Survey coverage includes 40 developed and emerging countries with country-level Consumer Types grouped into seven global-level types.

Best ways to target Wellness Enthusiasts

Wellness Enthusiasts are seen as the trailblazers of the wellness trend, based on their strong focus on holistic and personalised wellness solutions. While health and wellness food and beverages industries dominate the current industry, the future of wellness is multifaceted. This group increasingly perceives physical, mental and emotional needs as interconnected, necessitating holistic solutions from brands.

Wellness Enthusiasts seek healthy offerings, while they are also heavily influenced from previous experiences and recommendations from family and friends. They are proactive in seeking product information and service offerings or practices that will aid in their personal wellbeing. Health ingredients in foods are non-negotiable, as they seek to maintain their healthy lifestyles.

Holistic health solutions are the ideal way to build partnerships with Wellness Enthusiasts. By aligning with the strive towards holistic wellness, businesses can cater not only to this group but also to the broader population concerned about their mental health and longevity.

Wellness Enthusiasts balance their purchases across channels, while they are just as likely to visit health-related sites simply for research. These consumers want to know more about health and nutritional benefits, all-natural ingredients and superior taste. Providing a product or service that aids in their belief that they will be healthier in the future by identifying what they are researching.

Best Ways to Target

- Offerings that align with holistic wellness activities, such as stress reduction, mindfulness practices, fitness and balanced nutrition.
- Uncomplicated, clear labels and product/usage information supported by reviews
- Promotion of products that enhance personal wellbeing
- Provide detailed information and latest developments/improvements on product formulation and benefits or redesigned wellness services

Best ways to target Changemakers

Sustainability and in equal measure social responsibility are fundamental attributes demanded by Changemakers. These consumers are purpose led, and actively seek to support businesses that align with sustainability and social responsibility practices. As they are vocal advocates for social issues, brands should align their offerings with these values around sustainability and social issues.

Value-based communication and a quality guarantee-led product portfolio are effective strategies for winning Changemakers. These strategies align with their demands, such as product simplification, trust in brands or companies, and more affordable solutions. Attributes such as eco-conscious packaging and labelling, and locally-sourced goods and high-quality ingredients will also bode well to appeal to this group of consumers.

Emphasising transparency and trust-building through authentic communication should be prioritised. To build trust, brands should not only provide transparent information about their products, but also engage in open dialogues about their values, operations and sustainability practices or initiatives.

While Changemakers remain committed to brands that align with their values and beliefs, being budget-consciousness also plays a role in their purchasing behaviours. They seek products that balance quality, sustainability and affordability. Companies should attempt to frame premium offerings not just as higher-priced options, but as long-term investments that offer tangible benefits such as durability, health advantages, or environmental impact.

Best Ways to Target

- Promote sustainability efforts, including waste reduction and energy-efficiency, positioning goods as affordable and providing long-term value
- Emphasise clear, eco-conscious packaging and labelling, highlight locally-sourced goods or high-quality ingredients
- Be transparent in communication and community engagement to build trust
- Make sustainable choices accessible across different budgets, with tiered pricing or loyalty programmes, balancing quality and cost

Best ways to target Experience Seekers

This consumer type is seeking opportunities that add more than just instant gratification or temporary satisfaction. Among significant drivers such as valuing real world experiences, exploring new cultures and enjoying tailored activities, this growth will be supported by a shift towards cross-industry entertainment options.

Experience Seekers are drawn to compelling narratives. To reach and entice them, the focus should be on marketing strategies that include products or services that are promoted through engaging content (advertainment) and by employing narratives and exposure across multiple media platforms (transmedia storytelling).

Experience Seekers prioritise spending on engaging, real world and culturally diverse experiences over material goods. These consumers also highly value experiential shopping, as such, physical stores should offer curated experiences tailored to their tastes, while creating immersive and interactive in-store shopping experiences.

Travel, technology and lifestyle businesses can cater directly to the needs of Experience Seekers, who prioritise unique, real world experiences. These industries can effectively engage them by offering innovative solutions, convenience and the presence of curated experiences tailored to their tastes within physical stores.

Best Ways to Target

- Offer unique but diverse activities that appeals to consumers who value real world experiences
- Allow for personalisation, such as customisable options that allow for tailored experiences
- Leverage technology to focus and create a strong brand story to weave throughout the experience
- Push engaging content across multiple media platforms that supports a customer-centric approach

Best ways to target Trendsetters

Trendsetters are always on the lookout for the latest trends and innovations. To effectively engage with them, brands should leverage social media and market their solutions or offerings to the widest audience possible, especially as this consumer type is active in engaging, interacting, communicating and sharing their opinions about brands or businesses on their associated social media accounts.

An omnichannel strategy is paramount for engaging with this consumer type, especially in establishing a strong presence on social media platforms. This strategy will ensure a customer-centric approach is followed, allowing for seamless integration, personalised content and consistent messaging.

Creating urgency through exclusive limited-edition products, time-limited discounts and in-store events effectively targets Trendsetters by leveraging their impulsive behaviour. Strategies should be combined with personalised recommendations, interactive in-store experiences and hyper-tailored loyalty features to have the biggest impact.

Targeting Trendsetters allows businesses to leverage their appetite for trends and innovation, making them ideal for testing new products and services. Engaging and enticing this segment effectively can create significant exposure and visibility, especially via social media. Successfully capturing Trendsetters' attention can drive brand credibility, foster early adoption and generate valuable feedback, ultimately enhancing market positioning and growth.

Best Ways to Target

- Clear promotion of the latest trends, especially through social media platforms
- Create seamless omnichannel experiences, ensuring a consumer-centric approach for personalised content and consistent messaging
- Tailored and personalised shopping experiences
- Create buzz and urgency around the newest products or services and announce them effectively

Best ways to target Brand Champions

Brand Champions are vocal about their demands and actively provide feedback on the products and services they consume. They actively engage with brands as they wish to influence innovation, product development and new solutions. Businesses need to have open lines of communication and follow these discussions and feedback closely, as the interactions make it easier for brands to align with their target market's preferences.

Consumers universally value brands that deliver consistent quality and reliability. This consistency builds trust, which is a fundamental aspect of brand loyalty. Brand Champions are drawn to brands they trust, especially those that reflect their values, aspirations and lifestyles.

Brand Champions seek more than just transactional gains, they value emotional loyalty, fostering strong, lasting bonds. Focused on personalisation, consumer empowerment and community strengthens their brand preferences and should not be disregarded. Authentic storytelling is a potent strategy aligned with Brand Champions' desire for a sense of belonging to a community.

Brand Champions represent the next generation of loyal consumers, prioritising emotional over transactional loyalty. Personalisation, consumer empowerment and alignment with consumers' values and lifestyles are crucial elements for strategic marketing that seeks to strengthen these consumers' brand loyalty and advocacy.

Best Ways to Target

- Clearly outlined independent reviews and constant customer feedback and support
- Tailored and personalised shopping experience, coupled with brand engagement
- Authentic storytelling that aligns with consumers' lifestyles and sense of community
- Clear promotion of the latest trends and developments, especially through social media platforms

Best ways to target Budgeteers

Value optimisation and financial security are what Budgeteers are seeking. Targeting Budgeteers, especially during times of economic uncertainty, addresses key consumer concerns. By positioning as partners in financial security and value optimisation, businesses can expand their customer base, build trust and enhance resilience.

Consumer-centric money management solutions resonate with Budgeteers, as they are much more cautious in their current and future spending habits. While affordability remains paramount, a clear and compelling value proposition is crucial for targeting Budgeteers effectively. Emphasising convenience, efficacy, seamless service integration and multi-purpose design will appeal to their desire for maximum value from purchases.

Budgeteers try to live minimalist lifestyles. Offering them compact but multifunctional goods with proven efficacy attracts their attention and encourages their willingness to spend more on less. This also means, that if quality and durability are guaranteed, they are more willing to pay a slight premium.

By comprehensively understanding the priorities and purchasing behaviours of Budgeteers, who are characteristically rational and discerning consumers, businesses and brands can strategically enhance their resilience against financial downturns, better meet customer needs and build lasting loyalty.

Best Ways to Target

- Strong promotion of prices and discounts, specifically highlighting value for money and added attributes
- Create a clear and compelling value proposition that covers more than low-price
- Ensure durability and quality are guaranteed and promote this as such
- Convenient services to facilitate quick and effortless purchases

Research overview

Overview of Voice of the Consumer: Lifestyles Survey

Focus and Design

This survey tracks numerous aspects of consumer life, including healthy living, green influences, eating and drinking, shopping, spending, technology, and personal traits and values. This survey began in 2011 and is tracked annually.

Survey, design, execution and analysis were developed collaboratively across teams within Euromonitor International, in conjunction with outside sample partners.

Fielding

A diverse set of online panellists in 40 countries were invited to participate in January and February 2025. 1,000 responses were captured in each market. Panellists were pre-screened to ensure that the sample matched each country's population according to nested quotas for age (from 15 to 65) and gender.

Data Cleaning

Only unique, complete responses to the Lifestyles Survey questionnaire were used in analysis. Data cleaning includes removing duplicate IP addresses, illogical responses and responses with fast completion times.

Topics

The survey measures consumers' attitudes and behaviour on the following themes:

- Eating and drinking
- House and home
- Healthy and ethical living
- Leisure and recreation
- Personal traits and values
- Path to purchase
- Shopping
- Spending and saving

How do we create our Consumer Types?

Global Consumer Types

To create Consumer Types, we identify a subset of questions in Euromonitor International's Voice of the Consumer: Lifestyle Survey that encapsulate specific segments' attitudes and behaviours.

The Consumer Types did not include clustering according to the demographic traits; any prevalence of consumers from a particular demographic trait within one cluster is due to respondents' other shared characteristics.
